| 1 Cove | 287 | Flagstaff Cottage can be seen above the cove. Birch would have looked down on this scene from his bedroom window during his final illness. We can see early work on constructing a car park. The ground has recently been concreted and a café has been built. The boats near the cottages belonged to the painter Denys Law. From Flagstaff 12 |
| 1 Cove | 288 | This shows the part of the cove where the toilets were constructed. Jack Small and his family lived in the huts. The postman on his rounds is unidentified. It is thought that by 1955 the practice of walking the mail from Mousehole, across the cliff meadows, had stopped and that the postman used a van. |

| 1 Cove | 472 | Photo of black door on beach at Lamorna. Ann to describe |
| 1 Cove | 506 | Lamorna Cove, 1900. The inn used to be called the Wink (they say) because you winked at the landlord to obtain some smuggled gin or brandy! In 1900 the quarry was working and small ships would arrive to take the granite blocks. Lamorna granite was in great demand and was used in the building of the Embankment in London, a new pier at Mousehole, and the Wolf Rock Lighthouse. Later, because the cove was too small for large ships, they manhandled large blocks of granite by road to Penzance for transport by sea. |

| 1 Cove | 2628 | David Tovey spotted this photo on E-bay. Adam Kerr doesn't think it was taken in the garden of Flagstaff but in the lane below the garden at a spot known locally as Windy Corner. 'Impossible I think to identify anyone, but I wondered whether the shortish man third from left with a straight back was Stanley Gardiner. Looks like him. Might fill a vacant corner in the next Flagstaff. Looks to me like a Sunday afternoon shot - people wearing hats, ties and waistcoats'. Ben Hanley glass slide of Lamorna Cove, 1936. |
| 1 Cove | 2630 | Irish Lady, photographed by Patricia M Wilnecker. This is the place depicted in the Lamorna Birch watercolour in Michael Trimble's collection that members were asked to help identify in the last Flagstaff. Patricia says that it is between Land's End and Sennen and the pinnacle to the right of the foreground is the Irish Lady. She took the photograph on June 10 2010 having got as close to Birch's viewpoint as she could. |

| 3 House | 566 | In 1400, Boskenna was owned by the Benne family and later passed into the hands of the Killigrews. The house is marked in the oldest maps. In 1678 the house was purchased and restored by Francis Paynter son of Arthur Paynter who was Lord of the Manor in Trelissick situated at the head of the River Fal. Further property was added to the original purchase so that eventually the estate included about 2,000 acres of land. Lt. Col. Paynter in 1910 bought the second motor car to be registered in Cornwall, a steam driven Serpolet. He owned practically all the land the Lamorna side of Lands' End This comprised some 2,000 acres, including 32 farms. He also owned numerous houses including Clapper Mill, Trewoofe and Oakhill, all on the road to Penzance from Lamorna. He died in 1948. Col. Paynter, was one of the two sons of Thomas Paynter. The other was Hugh Paynter. On the eve of his departure to serve in the South African War, Col. Thomas Paynter, who at the time was unmarried, became worried about the fate of the property. He encouraged his brother, Hugh, to have more children, and heir to the estate. Three years later he himself married and his only daughter was born in 1906. When Col. Paynter died, the estate was left to Elizabeth 'Betty' Hill, his daughter. In 1949 Col Paynter died and Betty (married a solicitor Stephen Paul Jewell Hill) inherited the property. The couple spent Bettys inheritance and in 1956 everything was sold. See 563. |

| 4 Quarry | 65 | Photos. The God Stone. The quay was already built before 1870; in the building of this, a granite block was placed in a prominent position with the following words taken from Psalm 127: 'Except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it.' The 3' x 12" x 18" stone was originally set into the seaward wall in the lower quay. After one of the great storms, the wall and the block collapsed into the sea. The granite block, lettered in lead, was recovered and set into the newer wall nearby. From Anne Forrest. |

| E | 296 | Papers downloaded from the internet, 13/1/2015 relating to Gilbert Evans. |
| E | 445 | Two Photographs of Capt Gilbert Evans R.E. taken about 1908, when the royal Monmouthshire Royal Engineers were transferred from being a Militia to becoming a regular army regiment. Gilbert became a regular Officer on the reserve. While he was in Cornwall being agent for Col. Paynter, he and Paynter would go to Monmouth periodically for training exercises. |
| E | 446 | Gilbert on his pony in the stable yard at Elmsfield. Gilbert in later years became a very fine horseman. He played Polo in Nigeria and raced his own horses 'Owner Up'. At the stage of this photograph he is age c15 years. He hunted with the Pentyrch and the Glamorgan during School holidays. |
| E | 447 | The Wedding at Elmsfield, the Evans family home in Cardiff, in 1907 of Gilbert Evans' sister Maud, to Major Frank Goldthorpe of the Indian Cavalry. Gilbert is in Uniform, third from the left. This was the year in which he was promoted Captain. |
| E | 448 | During his time with the Royal Monmouthshire Royal Engineers, Gilbert Evans kept a trout farm on The River Monnow with a friend of his in the Regiment, Truaron Vizzard. Here his is, (on the left) stocking a reservoir in North Wales. He also wrote articles for The Field on trout. |
| E | 449 | This letter is commiserating with Gilbert Evans concerning the death of Gilbert's brother Basil (known in the family as Sammy) in 1909. It is from George Fitzroy Henry Somerset, 3rd Lord Raglan, who was the grandson of the Lord Raglan who was involved in the disastrous Charge of the Light Brigade. He was a colonel in the Royal Monmouthshire Royal Engineers. He was very fond of Gilbert Evans and was his mentor and friend. He was Governor of the Isle of Man at this time and Gilbert was intermittently his ADC there. |

| E | 461 | Gilbert's Car - an American Mitchell. Gilbert was wounded fighting at Mora on the border of Nigeria and German Cameroon, in January 1915. He returned home later that year and drove down to Cornwall in his new car, staying at Taunton on the way. This was probably the occasion on which he visited Blote's grave at Sancreed and was given 'The Morning Ride', which Munnings had left for him with the Knights. |
| E | 465 | Photo of Major Gilbert Evans RE. FRGS. (1883 - 1966) taken in 1964 when he was eighty one. He retired as Deputy Surveyor General in Nigeria in 1933. He was about to be promoted Surveyor General, but had to retire early due to a thrombosis in the leg. He came back to Tregurnow Cliff at Lamorna with his young wife Joan and had two boys, Tim and David. In retirement he practiced as a Land Agent to various Landed estates in West Cornwall and had an office at 14, North Parade, Penzance. During the war, he was in charge of the Special Constables in West Cornwall. He was a well known and well liked figure in the Area. His Grave is in Zennor Churchyard. |

| M | 463 | The Jays Feathers and the little Photograph. One day in 1987, David and Christine Evans were helping David's mother to move from Oakhill Cottage in Lamorna to sheltered accommodation in Penzance. They sat on the Lawn on a lovely spring day at the head of the Lamorna valley, emptying an old tin Trunk. Most of the contents were to be thrown out, but at the end David noticed a small piece of folded lined paper at the bottom of the trunk. He was about to throw it out, but just out of curiosity, opened it. Out onto the grass fell this tiny Photograph, together with two feathers, one a jay's feather, as bright as the day that it had been put there, some seventy five years earlier. The Photo measured 3cm x 2cm. And was of Florence Munnings (Blote). |
| M | 464 | Two letter written by Dame Laura Knight. [1] Letter dated 27/8/1961 to Violet Munnings. This letter indicates that Violet, Lady Munnings had been approached by Reginald Pound, the author of a biography of Alfred Munnings, for information on Blote's death. In this letter Laura suggests that Mr Pound should go to see her. It is a copy of a letter in the Royal Academy. [2] Letter dated 31/8/1961 starts to explain the reason for Blote's death. It is a copy of a letter in the Royal Accademy Library from Laura to Reginald Pound. |
